

Hannah Barlow

Hannah Barlow grew up in Orem and Springville, Utah. She graduated from Merit College Preparatory Academy where she was on the student council and the volleyball team. She started her college career at Utah Valley University during high school and continued there after graduating high school.

After finishing her first year as a full time college student, Hannah put her education on hold to serve as a full time missionary for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. She came to love the people of the Philadelphia area and enjoyed the many leadership opportunities that were given to her.

Hannah's experiences as a missionary created a desire to continue serving and leading others in a greater capacity. Her time as a missionary motivated her to seek out a career that would give her opportunities to reach out and have a positive impact on the lives of others. Hannah is currently a junior at Utah Valley University. She is a Psychology major and plans on continuing her education by getting a master's in Social Work.